

1856D19, 1830M20 & Outpost M6 are held over. No word of any sort from Peter J for the 18xx games despite reminders – they will run next time whatever. Many of you know that Steve T has recently had various medical misadventures that have exacerbated his sciatica and he hasn't been able to send orders for Outpost M6 – or work on his own publication ... mais n'est ce pas la gare? I'll review the situation next time and of course join all in wishing Steve as quick and as full a recovery as can be made.

The 1856 advertised last time starts on this page. I've also started an 1870 with the players from the waiting list – there was no warning so please advise if any problems. The next game to start after these two will be an 1829 South. 1835Q19 will finish next time and these two starts brings the 18xx game count back up to the Minstrel standard of 10.

On the question last time of which order to list the companies in the portfolio table – the overall feeling was one of indifference. What preference that was expressed went for operating order. The "operating order" message will also still stay - but be sacrificed if it helps significantly with pagination.

We're nearing the traditional holiday season so please let me know if sending orders will be difficult. No problem with holding games over if I know – but waiting for orders that won't come is a mug's game.

1830P18COMMENTS

John W How did that happen? A very weird start to the game with Don deliberately driving down the price of PRR, even though he was the only shareholder, and then sitting back and letting me take it over. I'll be interested to hear his reasons for this, but I don't think that it will change my view that the game was basically about who was best placed to take the PRR away from him, which in the end, was just a matter of luck.

Mark S Thanks for running the game. A close finish. I was obviously slightly out on the timing.

Tony S At least I was running the biggest profits at the end of the game. Too little, too late again - but at least moving in the right direction !"

GM A close finish to an interesting game (as in "may you live in interesting times"). Don bagged last place pretty early on and there was much stalling around the emergence of the 5 and 6 trains. As said, timing is everything - and of the three players at the end John timed it right.
