

Outpost M7 is on page 10. St. Petersburg is on the last page. The 18xx games are in identifier order except that the new 1835C24 is inserted at page 3. Gamestarts are on this page.

New Games: This time we have starts for 1829 South and Railway Rivals just below. No more takers for the 1856 for those who haven't won a Minstrel 1856 game (two more needed). I have the 6 players I said I needed to start another Outpost but I'll delay that one issue to spread out the starts somewhat. Next time I will also start up an all reader fluffy game - participation required.

This issue is woefully late. I've simply been doing many other things. That included two recent weekends of games. The first was MidCon. Good to see many of you there but I missed Mark H who was only there on the Friday (and I was not as that was the day of my eldest daughter's graduation ceremony). I maintained my undefeated record at Funkenschlag but lost my (short) "wins only" record for Imperial. The weekend after was three days with a group in Eastbourne and that was games with some socialising unlike MidCon which was more socialising with games played.

Games new to me included The Year Of The Dragon and League of Six. The Year Of The Dragon is a "perfect information" game - you know the 12 end of round events that will occur and you just need to optimise your way through them and amass more victory points than anybody else. You know what you want to do but the other players may scupper your plans. A danger with perfect information is over-analysis but that did not happen - probably because whilst you need a general strategy you cannot always guarantee what will happen on the next turn so you have to be flexible. I found it to be an engrossing game. I also enjoyed the League of Six - and there was good player interaction during the Amun Re/Vegas Showdown style bidding sections - but I am less sure its replay value. You knew what you were bidding for but the extent to which you didn't know what you would be able to do with it afterwards was too much. One play is not enough - I wouldn't refuse another game but I won't look for one. Other games included Wikinger, Brass, Key Harvest, Hamburgum and a mad late night session derived from a now defunct game on Italian Politics - six or seven spirited role players needed to form and deform the government, often.

GAMESTART

You are ... in dealing order ... Andy Muir, Mike Ruffhead, George Lucas, Tony Osborne, David Hooton.

All except David & George have played 1829 here before (David & George - I will send a tile sheet by separate and later message). But please advise any queries. You have £504 each to spend ...

You are ... Tony Bromley, David Hooton, Mike Ruffhead, Gina Teh & John Webley.

Okay, let's try the Brussels map - copy enclosed. Also available at <http://www.hollowell.plus.com/rr-br3.JPG>. I think you all know the rules - but advise any queries. The minimum run length will be 6 hexes. The build allowance will be in the range 11-15 each time but is much more likely to be 12-14.

For next time, please nominate a company name and supply preference lists for colour and start town. There will be no more than two starting from each of Heysel, Drogenbos and Watermaal-Bosvoorde. Please simply list all three towns in order of preference - without conditions on number of starters at each town.

Don - The B&M cannot reach F16 (the NYC & CPR really do still have bases on E19) and it costs $120 to build on F16 in any case. John sold two C&O and one each of NYNH, NYC & Erie to fund the B&O's diesel. Train shuffling from the current leading and trailing mean that the game is not done yet.

Sold Out - Data Library, Warehouse, Nodule

Jeff & Mike are busy as they prepare for the final round through the phases. There is just the one work to come out next time so we'll do the Workers and Buildings phases in one go. That still leaves empty spaces. I've omitted the Discard pile information this time in a shameless bid to limit this report to a single page. The discards are unchanged from last time so please refer to Minstrel 305 for details.
