

The 18xx games are on page 2 onwards in the order of starting - but Don Smith's games are held over as he has been in and out of hospital. Outpost M14 is on p6. St. Petersburg M4 is delayed and will be sent to players in about a fortnight. The Games That You Play is on p7. 1830L37 comments are below.

New Games:

- I will seek a replacement for Don Smith in the not yet started 1856X39.
- None of the 6 waiting for a Railway Rivals game made any map suggestions so I think I need to check with them directly about their interest as the list has been there for so long.
- Meanwhile, I will be starting up a new regular Outpost soon so please join the waiting list if interested.
- It is a long time since an 1829 started but - if we discount Don - we are short one player for a start on the southern map. Let me know if you are interested in completing the line-up.

It is a slim issue with Don's games held over. Clearly we all hope that he will be back with us soon. His son Colin has offered to step in to keep the games going "if it becomes an issue". I don't have any feel right now for how long Don's recuperation period will be so I will see "where we are" as we near the next deadline.

Well, assuming that the benefit of the extra share won me the game in the end, hurrah and I never doubted it for a minute. If on the other hand, Tony has won it, congratulations him and what an idiot I am! Either way, I'll never do anything so daft again. Ever. Until I do, obviously. Thanks to everyone else for going the distance - I just really wanted to see what would happen, and it is after all, only a game ... (Cries of "Heresy!" and "Burn him!" may be heard from the crowd with the torches and pitchforks gathering outside.)

A most interesting game which, for me, revolved around the 4-train/Diesel upgrade conundrum. At OR8 the B&O was struggling with cashflow as the arrival of 6-trains knocked out the company's rather dilapidated 3 trains and the President (a.k.a. me) did not have enough of the readies to purchase a Diesel outright. Mike came up with a solution... he'd sell the B&O a 4-train for a knockdown price to keep me in the game. After a bit of haggling over the small print (i.e. promise he or David would not subsequently upgrade one of their other 4-trains to a Diesel and leave me empty handed again) we agreed that no one would upgrade for a minimum 3 operating rounds. Well I think we managed to get to OR14 before the Diesels came into play.

I am not sure if Mike would have won by default if I had gone bankrupt in OR8, or if one of the other players would have been slightly better placed, however it was great that the game went on and became very close in the end. Well done to Mike for winning, showing that "good guys can come first" and needless to say I am very pleased to make it in second place.

The last 4 train remains unsold - probably to nobody's surprise - and Mike puts his marker on the Erie. Next time we will stop after OR8 if a 5 train is bought during that OR.
